Seniors at NHA's James C. White Manor ready to enjoy newly renovated recreation area and garden

Newark, NJ – At 1 p.m. Wednesday, July 22, The Newark Housing Authority unveiled a newly renovated community activities area and garden at James C. White Manor, 516 Bergen Street.

The makeover consists of outdoor seating areas with canopies; upgraded fencing and signage and landscaping accented with various flowers. Inside the facility on the main floor are a stylish reception area, conference room, and offices.

“This new space at James C. White Manor represents the type of quality recreational places that are needed throughout our city. Places where our residents can come together and enjoy the outdoors.” said Mayor Cory C. Booker.

Executive Director Keith Kinard said the goal is to offer residents a great place to socialize comfortably and enjoy the outdoors.

“This new space continues my goal of creating places that reflect the dignity and worth of our residents.” Kinard said.

“James C. White Manor is part of a larger renovation effort to provide residents with stylish, quality living. We hope residents can use the new spaces for community events or just enjoying a nice day,” Kinard said.

WHO: Newark Housing Authority Executive Director Keith Kinard, Mayor Cory C. Booker, special guests from the Newark Municipal Council, other dignitaries and senior residents.
